NORTH CAROLINA IS EXPECTED TO ERECT MONUMENT

Tentative Site Is Selected By Committee On The Culp Farm.

A tentative site for a contemplated monument commemorating the valor of North Carolina's troops in the Battle of Gettysburg was selected by a committee, which visited the battlefield Monday afternoon.

The place selected for the projected memorial is a site on East Confederate avenue on the Culp farm, on the west side of the thoroughfare.

Hattie Murphy, speaker in the North Carolina state house of representatives, and A. H. Boyden, a veteran of the Confederate States' Army, holding the rank of brigadier general, spent more than two hours touring the field, before agreeing upon a site for the monument.

To Seek Appropriation Governor Angus W. McLean, of North Carolina, became interested a year ago in a proposal to erect a monument to the memory of soldiers of that state who participated in the battle here. At that time he expressed himself as favorable to the erection of a tribute, and pledged his energies toward securing a state appropriation for placing of the memorial here.

The North Carolina legislature meets this fall, and an appropriation for a memorial to North Carolina in the battle here is almost certain of passage.

It is understood that Governor McLean, in opening the new session of the legislature, will ask the representatives to frame and pass a bill to set aside funds with which to raise the tribute to living and dead veterans who participated in the Battle of Gettysburg.

That such a measure would be certain of passage and given all the leeway possible in its course through the legislature is indicated by the sending of the speaker of the house to Gettysburg to select a tentative site for the monument.

Had Many Officers Here North Carolina, as yet, has no monument memorializing the heroic deeds of her sons on the field at Gettysburg. Various markers, erected by the battlefield commission, tell the story of the bravery and valor of North Carolina veterans, but no state, brigade or regimental tribute has

ALLEGED DRUNKEN DRIVER IS HELD

Straban Township Farmer Arrested and Pronounced Intoxicated by Local Physician.

Charged with operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of liquor, William Mathews, Straban township, was given a preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace J. U. Appler, Monday evening. Mathews furnished $300 bail for his appearance at the November term of quarter sessions.

Mathews was arrested Sunday afternoon near his home near Hunterstown by High Constable George B. Aughinbaugh, who charged that Mathews was driving his automobile from one side of the road to the other. Constable Aughinbaugh took Mathews before Dr. J. P. Dalbey, who confirmed the officer's suspicion that the man was under the influence of liquor. Mathews was then committed to jail for a hearing.

The Straban township man is said to have ordered his wife from their home and to have thrown her clothes out of the house. His sons came to Gettysburg and notified Constable Aughinbaugh, and Mathews' arrest followed.

MYERS HEARING IS POSTPONED

The hearing for Vernon Myers, York street, charged with reckless driving after an accident in which Miss Helen Robinson, West High street, was run down by Myers' automobile, was postponed from Monday to Thursday evening.

The hearing was scheduled before Justice J. U. Appler. William Arch McLean, attorney for Myers, asked for a continuance of the hearing.

SKULL FRACTURED WHEN AUTO SKIDS IN MAKING TURN

Albert Gulden, New Oxford, In Hospital; Machine Turned Over Near McKnightstown.

Albert Gulden, 63, of New Oxford, suffered a fractured skull when the automobile he was driving skidded from the Lincoln Highway, and upset near McKnightstown, Monday evening, shortly after 5 o'clock.

Gulden, who was alone in the machine at the time, had been picking apples on a farm between McKnightstown and Arendtsville, and was returning home when the accident occurred.

It is reported that he drove out onto the Lincoln Highway from the Arendtsville road, near McKnightstown, and that the machine skidded on the smooth, wet surface of the concrete road as he turned toward Gettysburg.

There were no other automobiles in sight at the time, and the injured man was unable to give a rational explanation of the accident afterward. He was first taken to the home of W. S. Goss, opposite whose place the accident occurred.

Dr. R. B. Elderdice, of McKnightstown, was summoned, and after an examination of the injured man, advised that he be taken to the Warner Hospital here, where Gulden was admitted shortly after 6 o'clock. He was brought to the hospital by William P. Weikert, of McKnightstown.

At the hospital today, it was said that Gulden's condition was "fair," although he is only conscious at intervals. Hope, however, is held for his ultimate recovery.

Gulden's touring car was badly damaged in upsetting, but was able to run under its own power, after being righted, and was taken to the Weikert garage in McKnightstown.

"MISSING LINK" BELIEVED FOUND

(By Associated Press.) Batavia, Java, Sept. 28.—Professor Heberline, of the Netherlands government medical service, has discovered in Central Java a complete skull of the pre-historic ape-like creature said by some to be "the missing link." The skull was found at the same place where Professor Dubois, of Amsterdam University, discovered in 1892 the upper part of a skull, two teeth and a thigh bone from which was constructed the previously unknown ape-like human designated as "pithecanthropus erectus."

Professor Heberline's specimen which is complete will be kept in Dutch East India as the exportation of such relics is prohibited.

DR. R. WILLIS FAIR DIES IN CAPITAL

(By Associated Press.) Harrisburg, Sept. 28.—Dr. R. Willis Fair, 75, clerk in the department of banking, died suddenly at the department of health today where he went in search of relief after becoming ill while at work. Death was the result of an attack of angina pectoris.

Dr. Fair was a former member of the house of representatives from Westmoreland county. He served as a member of the committee appointed to investigate the construction of the canal.

STUDENTS AND FACULTY TO SEE PLANK DAY GAME

Section Of Grandstand Will Be Reserved For Local College Fans In Philadelphia.

The students, or a part of them at least, will journey to Philadelphia where they will witness the deciding game of the "city series," between the Athletics and the Phillies, on Thursday, which has been set aside as "Eddie Plank Day," the entire proceeds of the game to be given to the fund now being raised for the erection of the Eddie Plank Memorial Gymnasium at the college.

Dr. Henry W. A. Hanson has just returned from Philadelphia where he made preliminary arrangements for the contest. It is planned that the students from the college will occupy a section of the grandstand, while the members of the faculty will occupy a box.

While the official season of both the American and National Leagues ends on Wednesday, the contest between the two Quaker City teams will be the curtain call for baseball in that city for the 1926 season, and it is also predicted that the game will be as rapidly fought as though the world's title depended upon it. The supremacy of the two teams is a matter of conjecture, the Phillies claiming that they are tied with Connie Mack's aggregation, having won two and lost two of the pre-season games played last spring on their return from the training trip, but the Athletics claim that the standing is four to two in their favor, counting the two games played in Florida as a part of the series, both of which they won. So with this difference the fight will be a good one, take Eddie Pollock's word for that.

According to a representative of the memorial fund committee the sale of tickets for the game has exceeded first expectations, and unless the day is marred by rain a large crowd is expected to be on hand for the game. During the game an automobile will be presented to George Burns, star first sacker of the Cleveland Indians, by a number of his Philadelphia admirers.

NEW TEACHERS TO HOLD MEETING

A meeting for beginning teachers in rural schools throughout Adams county will be held Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the new high school building here. Many teachers just starting their careers have experienced trouble in properly filling out attendance cards, according to W. Raymond Shank, county superintendent of schools, and the matter will be thoroughly explained Friday evening.

The teachers have been instructed to bring with them to the meeting their attendance roll books, and failure to do so will take 5 points from their ratings, the county superintendent declared.

The teaching of reading, penmanship and art also will be discussed at the meeting.

ACORN CLUB TO PRESENT COMEDY

"Fleurette" Will Be Given On October 21 By Local Talent.

The Acorn Club of this city is selecting talent for the new musical comedy "Fleurette" which is to be staged here October 21, under its auspices. "Fleurette" is the story of a pretty French girl employed in the shop of a New York modiste. She has seen happier days but has found her romance in the person of a young lawyer and the play dates after their engagement. She becomes the center of a well meaning plot by a mischievous brother-in-law of an Englishman to cure the latter of his over-fondness for his wife. That is, the old man lavishes so much attention on his young wife that the latter does not treat him with the consideration he deserves. Her young brother invents a scheme to make her appreciate her really excellent husband as she should. This develops a story filled with delightfully amusing situations.

In addition to the story there are a number of attractive musical choruses interpolated. About 100 performers will participate in the production.

The committee has been fortunate this year in procuring exceptional talent for the singing and talking parts. Those on the committee are Ruth Raffensperger, Mazie Klinefelter, Dorothy Foth, Effie Singley, Annette Miller, Ruth Jones and Emilie Scharf. John B. Rodgers Producing Company, of Fostoria, Ohio, will stage this year's show. This company will be remembered as the one which staged "Kathleen" and "Bimbo."

DIRECTORS NAMED BY MOTOR CLUB; WILL ORGANIZE

Board Is Chosen at Open Meeting; Permanent Officers Will Be Chosen For Coming Year.

The board of directors of the Gettysburg Motor Club of Adams county was elected at an open meeting of the members of the club held in the auditorium of the Hotel Gettysburg Monday evening. The meeting called by the temporary president, Robert C. Miller, was the first concrete step towards forming a permanent organization and will be followed by a meeting of the board this evening when the board will organize by electing a chairman and also the permanent officers of the club to assume the positions now held by Robert C. Miller, temporary president; Henry Scharf, temporary secretary, and Howard Mitinger, temporary treasurer.

The directors named at the meeting last evening were John H. Slusser, Aspers; E. G. Boyer, Biglerville; R. G. Bream, Cashtown; D. C. Jacobs, Arendtsville; R. C. Neely, Fairfield; E. B. Collins, Littlestown; F. V. Topper, McSherrystown; E. C. Livingston, New Oxford; J. Harvey Neely, York Springs; P. R. Bickle, C. A. Bixler, J. W. Brehm, R. P. Funkhouser, A. R. Jones, J. D. Keith, H. R. Mitinger, Henry M. Scharf, E. W. Thomas, Charles H. Smith, all of Gettysburg, and Harry Riddlemoser, McKnightstown. The constitution and by-laws of the club were adopted with several reservations and they became effective immediately.

Nearly 300 Members It was announced by E. D. McNelly, field agent of the Pennsylvania Motor Federation, that the American Motorist, official publication of the American Automobile Association, would be sent to all of the members who had paid their dues during the week, the subscription to start with the current issue.

Designs for the radiator emblem designating membership in the club were discussed with a representative of a manufacturing firm but a definite decision was withheld until the director's meeting this evening.

A report on the results of the drive for members showed that nearly 300 motorists have enrolled with the club with a number still to be heard from. C. A. Bixler reported securing five new members and John H. Slusser, of Aspers, turned in six applications.

The meeting was well attended, the following being present: R. C. Miller, W. G. Weaver, H. T. Weaver, F. Elmer Coulson, C. A. Bixler, Henry Scharf, Edward J. Settler, John G. Glenn, J. W. Brehm, H. H. Miller, M. K. Eckert, W. A. Corbett, Howard Mitinger, all of Gettysburg; Thomas Dull, E. Earl Pitzer, John H. Slusser, A. M. Johnson, T. J. Wright, Paul Lutz, all of Aspers; Carl G. Lutz, Gardners; E. B. Collins and C. W. Stover, both of Littlestown; E. C. Livingston, New Oxford; H. C. Riddlemoser, McKnightstown; E. G. Boyer, Charles Raffensperger, J. D. Miller, Paul J. Hoffman, Charles L. Taylor and B. G. Walter, all of Biglerville.

TO HOLD SERVICES

Services will be held in the Prince of Peace Episcopal church, Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock, in celebration of St. Michael and All Angels.

COMMISSIONERS FOREGO TRIP

The Adams county commissioners did not hold their regular weekly meeting today. The commissioners had planned to attend the annual state convention of county commissioners at Philadelphia today, Wednesday and Thursday, but the disagreeable weather cancelled the trip. It was decided, nevertheless, not to hold the weekly meeting, since only a small amount of current business had accumulated since last week.

$101 IS DONATED TO RED CROSS FOR FLORIDA RELIEF

John Barton Payne Sends Data On Conditions Existing In Stricken Cities.

With funds being received daily from residents of Gettysburg and Adams county for the alleviation of suffering in the stricken area in Florida, information received by officials of the Adams county Red Cross today indicated that the hurricane disaster of ten days ago has left untold suffering, many hundreds dead and injured and millions of dollars worth of property damaged.

Up to this morning, Adams county had responded to the extent of $101 toward the Florida relief fund now being raised by the American Red Cross. Additional contributions announced today by Miss Margaret McMillan, secretary of the county chapter, include the following:

The Rev. H. E. Berkey, $5; Mrs. Sarah Himes, $10; Mrs. Ruth Himes Flaherty, $2; Harvey D. Bream, $2; R. William Bream, $3; Mrs. Kathryn Fogle, $5; Mrs. D. P. McPherson, $10; Mrs. L. K. Aughinbaugh, $25; Miss Kate Briel, $1; Miss Sadie Hoffman, $2, and two cash contributions from residents of Peach Glen for a total of $9.

Work Being Organized

A summary of Red Cross relief work in the stricken area of Florida was received by Miss McMillan today from John Barton Payne, chairman of the American Red Cross. Mr. Payne's communication follows: "Red Cross relief operations in Miami, Fort Lauderdale and the other points in the East Coast disaster area are becoming organized. Henry M. Baker, National Director of Disaster Relief, has arrived in this district and has taken charge of our work, assisted by a corps of nurses (Continued on Second Page)

PROFIT ON FAIR NETTED $1000

Directors Transact Routine Business; Expenses Were $6,500 and Receipts $7,600.

With the South Mountain Fair a thing of the past for this year, the board of directors of the association met Monday evening in Arendtsville and received all of the bills which had been incurred in making the exposition one of the most outstanding successes which has ever been undertaken in the county. Reports of the treasurer showed that the total receipts amounted to $5,600 from the fair alone, and $2000 from rain insurance collected when the final day of the exposition was marred by a heavy downpour. The compilation of the expenses of the various committees showed expenditures of $6,500 leaving a total profit of over $1000.

The receipts included the returns from the leasing of concessions, the gate receipts and the profit from the restaurant, which was in charge of M. E. Knouse, which was more than $500. In the expenditures were the prizes awarded to the exhibitors in the various departments and also the cost of the construction of several additional buildings which were required to house the large exhibit.

A. D. Sheely, secretary of the board of directors of the fair, announced that the checks for the prize money would be mailed to the winners within a short time.

Aside from routine business nothing else was discussed but a meeting will be called within the next few weeks when plans for the fair next year will be made and the groundwork for making it a "bigger and better" exposition started.

TO HOLD CLINIC

Well baby clinic for Gettysburg and vicinity will be held Wednesday from 2 until 4 o'clock in the Red Cross rooms, East High street, with Miss Kate Briel, state nurse in charge.

DRIVER IS NEARLY OVERCOME BY GAS FUMES IN TRUCK

William Sentz Collapses At Home After Fighting Fumes During Forty-Mile Drive.

Driving more than 40 miles after being partly overcome by carbon monoxide gas from the exhaust of the automobile he was driving, William Sentz, near Gettysburg, collapsed on the porch of his home, and is under the care of a physician.

Mr. Sentz, who resides between 4 and 5 miles east of Gettysburg along the Lincoln Highway, and who conducts a dray and electrical wiring business, left home early Monday morning for Washington D. C., driving a small truck, with an enclosed cab for the driver.

He was returning from the Capital City, when he first noticed the fumes of the deadly gas in the enclosed cab, the windows of which he kept shut tightly because of the cold weather. Occasionally, he opened the windows to allow the poisonous gas to escape, but before reaching Frederick, he became sick from the fumes after driving for some time without letting in fresh air.

He first noticed himself becoming sick about 5 o'clock, and was forced to stop until he felt better. He then continued toward home, although he was still suffering considerably from the deadly gas fumes from the exhaust, which came seeping into the cab.

Sentz reached home shortly before noon, and as he walked onto the porch of his home, he collapsed and lapsed into unconsciousness. The poisoned man was taken to bed and a physician summoned. The doctor, it is stated, said Sentz had a close call from death.

Sentz was improved today, although he was still feeling the effects of the carbon monoxide poisoning, and was confined to bed.

LOCAL BASEBALL SERIES PLANNED

Arendtsville and St. Mary's Will Play Opening Game For Title on Saturday.

Adams county's "little series" will start on October 2 it was decided at a meeting of the board of directors of the Adams county league at a meeting Monday evening. McSherrystown and Arendtsville, league leaders at the end of the half-season, will be the opposing teams.

McSherrystown copped the pennant for the first half of the season, which closed on July 5, and since it had such a lead over its nearest opponents, it was decided that the season would be split and in the second half Arendtsville walked off with first honors.

The first game will be played at Arendtsville on October 2 at 2:30 o'clock, with the return game at McSherrystown on the following Saturday. The third and deciding game of the series will be played on October 16 at a place to be decided by lot by the managers of the respective teams. Neutral umpires will be selected by each manager, their selection to be approved by the president of the league, O. A. Nary, Biglerville.

Some discussion arose at the meeting concerning the money posted as forfeits in case a team failed to play a game, but this matter was held over until the business meeting following the annual banquet of directors which will be held at Littlestown on October 19.

All teams were represented at the meeting with the exception of Midway and Pennville. O. A. Nary presided.

FUNERAL SERVICES HELD

Funeral services for Mrs. Ellen Arendt, widow of Calvin P. Arendt, who died at her home in Arendtsville last Friday afternoon, were held Monday afternoon at the house, the Rev. George B. Ely officiating. Interment was in Greenmount cemetery, Arendtsville.

ASK 13 MILLIONS FOR DRY FIGHT

Coast Guard and Customs Services Put Total Above That Mark During Present Year.

(By Associated Press.) Washington, Sept. 28.—An appropriation of about $13,000,000 for prohibition enforcement in the next fiscal year has been asked by the treasury. Assistant Secretary Andrews said today this appropriation contemplated no material increase over the present allotment although appropriations for the coast guard and customs services, which also participate in prohibition enforcement, increased the actual total of prohibition enforcement considerably above $13,000,000 for this year.

Designation of the state of New Jersey as a separate prohibition district apart from Eastern Pennsylvania is under consideration.

STOCK REPORT

(By Associated Press.) New York, Sept. 28.—Considerable irregularity developed at the opening of today's market. After an early selling movement in some of the stocks had spent itself, the general list began to make a response to the wonderful character of the August railroad earnings now being reported. Active bidding was noted for public utilities. Soft spots continued to crop out notably American Tobacco and Coca Cola. The renewal rate on tall loan was raised to 5% per cent.

SYMINGTON WILL RECEIVE DIVORCE

Hardford Judge Grants Decree Ignoring Injunction Granted by New York Court.

Belair, Md., Sept. 28.—Thomas H. Symington will get the divorce from Ida May Symington which he has sought in the courts of two states, Judge Preston, Hardford county, announced in an opinion filed yesterday.

"I have no doubt whatever of the misconduct of the wife," Judge Preston said, "and regard the allegations of the bill of complaint as fully proved. It follows that a divorce should be granted, and a decree will be passed accordingly."

No mention of alimony was made in the opinion.

Mrs. Symington did not appear in Hardford county during the taking of ex-parte testimony, but attempted unsuccessfully to stop the suit. Service of an injunction issued by Supreme Court Justice Walsh, of New York, was refused by Mr. Symington and his counsel, and Judge Preston ruled that the New York courts could receive no consideration in the Hardford county trial. The injunction was granted on the ground that a previous suit filed in New York was not completed.

Judge Preston said a copy of the decree, when he signed it, would be filed in New York to stop the suit pending there.

Mr. Symington alleged his wife was guilty of misconduct with Maurice Fatio, a New York architect, and Talbot W. Chambers, an official of a New York coal company.

NEW OXFORD GIRL WEDS LOCAL MAN

Miss Florence Lippincott Becomes Bride of James Shover at Pretty Wedding.

Miss Florence Lippincott, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Lippincott, West High street, New Oxford, and James L. Shover, son of Mr. and Mrs. George W. Shover, Gettysburg, were united in marriage at the New Oxford Methodist Episcopal church, Saturday at 2 p. m., by the pastor, the Rev. George C. Shaffer.

The bride was becomingly attired in a white georgette dress with white veil and carried a bouquet of pink roses and ferns. The bridesmaid, Miss Louise Anthony, Centennial avenue, Hanover, wore an apricot georgette dress with picture hat to match and carried a bouquet of pink roses and ferns. The bridegroom's brother, Lawrence Shover, acted as best man. The flower girls were Charlotte Essick and Maria Dietrick, cousins of the bride. They wore white frocks and carried baskets of mixed flowers. The ushers were William Shover, John Weaver, Charles Codori and Frank Pitzer. The wedding march was played by Miss Evelyn Yohe, who wore a gown of pink satin.

A wedding reception at the home of the bride followed the wedding. It was largely attended by friends and relatives including many out-of-town guests. Many handsome gifts were received by the bride.

The newly-weds left on a trip to the Sesquiennial, Atlantic City and other points. On their return they will make their home with the bride's parents. Mr. Shover is employed by Fribush Brothers.

MISS McSHERRY WEDS SATURDAY

Miss Esther McSherry, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles E. McSherry, 135 Main street, McSherrystown, and Earl Forry, near Brunsdown, were married last Friday in Baltimore. The ceremony was performed by the Rev. William F. Sauer, of St. Ambrose Catholic church.

The bridegroom is a graduate of the Hanover High School, class of 1925. Mr. and Mrs. Forry went on a wedding trip to Atlantic City and Philadelphia. They will reside with the bridegroom's parents for the present.

APPEAL FOR AID

$20,000 IN BONDS TAKEN FROM SAFE

Philadelphia, Sept. 28.—A safe in the offices of the American Ice Company, 121 North Broad street, was broken into by thieves over the weekend and $20,000 in stocks, bonds and cash taken.

The robbery, which was discovered by Joseph Salthouse, night watchman, on his round at 1:30 a. m. yesterday, showed evidence of having been done by robbers with ample time on their hands and a feeling of security. Only securities which could be easily negotiated were taken. Others were left strewn on the floor of the safe. More than $1500 in cash was taken, but another package containing $500 in $1 bills was left behind.

WATER COMPANY IMPROVES PLANT

Electric Pump to Replace Steam One in Use For Many Years Will be Installed Soon.

For the first time in its history, Gettysburg will be supplied with water pumped by electricity just as soon as the installation of motors and pumps now under way is completed, which, it is expected, will be during the present week. It is the belief that the new power will be read by Saturday.

The pump has been in position for some time. It is only a fraction of the size of the big steam pumps which have been in use for many years, but will send through as much water in 13 hours as the present equipment delivers in 22. Still more water could be pumped but the pressure on mains would then be excessive, engineers claim. The big transformers have also been in place for several weeks and all that needs to be done now is to place and hook up the big motor. This was lost somewhere in transit, and it was necessary to put tracers on it. The motor was shipped more than two weeks ago.

The water company determined to electrify its plant in order to provide additional security for the town. The big steam unit will be held in reserve for emergency purposes in the event of electrical trouble. Recent cleaning of the water main from the pumping station to the town has effected a big saving in power and, with the electrical outfit working, the plant will be in first class condition.

COUNTY MAN IS ACCIDENT VICTIM

Samuel E. Singley Buried at York; Died After Figuring in Crash, Near York.

Funeral services were held this afternoon for Samuel E. Singley, native of Adams county, who died in the York hospital, Saturday evening, of injuries suffered in an automobile accident in York several hours previous. The Rev. M. A. Kennelly, pastor of Grave Evangelical church, York, officiated. Burial was in the Spring Grove cemetery.

Singley and two other men, Curvin Henry Smith and William Johnson, the latter colored, were riding on a motorcycle which collided with an automobile driven by Miss Ida M. Gilbert, a ward of former Congressman S. F. Glatfelter, of York.

Smith was rushed to the hospital after the accident and his left foot amputated shortly after his arrival. Johnson's wounds, cuts and bruises about the head, were dressed. Singley complained of a pain in his left shoulder and it was first thought his injuries consisted of a fractured shoulder and cuts and bruises on the face. Later it developed his injuries were of a more serious nature and death followed Saturday night.

Singley leaves a wife, Flora Stover Singley; a son, Paul E., at home; two stepdaughters, Miss Onetta Linebaugh, at home, and Mrs. Earl Hittmeyer, York; a stepson, Albert Linebaugh, Wago; a mother, Mrs. Matilda Singley, York Route 10, and the following brothers and sisters: Mrs. Jesse Spangler, York Route 11; Mrs. Martin Shaffer, Orrtanna; Mrs. Lewis Richtine, Hanover; Walter Singley, Orrtanna, and Pius Singley, York. He was employed at the plant of the York Card and Paper Company and was a member of lodge No. 148, Loyal Order of Moose, and York Aerie No. 183, Fraternal Order of Eagles.

Death resulted from a fracture of the skull, a fracture of the shoulder and cerebral hemorrhage.

Coroner L. U. Zech, of York, is investigating the fatality.

ROAD NAMED FOR SENATOR FLYNN

(By Associated Press.) Harrisburg, Sept. 28.—Approval of the recommendation by the state department of highways that Route No. 8 from Waynesburg to Erie through Washington, Pittsburgh and Oil City be named the "William Flynn Highway" was announced today by Governor Pinchot.

The department chose this method of honoring the late Senator Flynn, of Pittsburgh, for his efforts in promoting good roads in Pennsylvania, "as a member of the legislature and as a private citizen."

'MILLIONAIRE'S' CHECKS RETURNED

Ironworker Who Was to Inherit Huge Fortune Has Trouble Collecting on Heritage.

Kewanee, Ill., Sept. 28.—Two checks aggregating $200,000, deposited Saturday in Kewanee banks by John Cooper, structural iron worker, as the first tangible proof of his claims to heirship of a $9,000,000 estate, bounced back yesterday and Kewanee's may-be millionaire was declared out on the first bounce.

The Detroit Central Savings Bank, on which the checks were drawn, said they were scraps of paper.

Cooper is Silent
Cooper went to Granite City, Illinois, last night with J. M. Cummings, Granite City motor car salesman, who said "everything would still come out all right." Cooper had no comment to make.

The first hint of the inheritance was given several years ago by the iron worker, who came to Kewanee fifteen years ago and married here. Several months ago he gave definite form to the story, saying a relative of great wealth had made a will settling a $9,000,000 estate upon him if he should, by honest toil, show himself worthy of receiving it when he had attained the age of 35. Cooper was 33 last week.

As his birthday approached Cooper announced he would give a $250,000 church to the First Christian congregation and a $150,000 nurses' home to the city in the name of Opal MacReady Cooper, his wife.

Estate Is Elusive
Cummings was to manage the estate, which was variously reported to be in Maryland, Virginia, West Virginia and Ohio.

The iron worker ordered from Cummings eight expensive motor cars. One actually was delivered.

Cooper's wife is in a hospital recuperating from an operation. They have four children.

and other trained disaster workers. Reports just received from Miami and nearby points verify the earlier reports that this is a disaster of the greatest magnitude, even more serious in many ways than the Midwestern tornado of March 1925, for which the American Red Cross spent $3,298,000. Thousands of homes have been destroyed, many beyond repair. Our medical advisor, after a rapid survey of the East Coast disaster area, informs us that there are at least 4,000 injured, many of these very seriously. In Miami alone 1,200 persons are in the regular hospitals and 150 in emergency hospitals. Five hundred of these sufferers have major fractures, and many more have lesser fractures. In many cases the injured will require expert care and extended hospitalization if the patients are not to come forth crippled for life. In two other East Coast communities the injured are estimated at 1,000. There is a real danger of a typhoid epidemic at several points and everything possible is being done to prevent such a situation. The number of dead is increasing as additional corpses are found in the ruins and the more isolated places.

"A serious disaster situation has developed at Moore Haven and Clouston. J. A. Hendrix, a representative of the National Organization at Sebring, states that 1,100 refugees from Moore Haven are being cared for in Sebring, and that others have been sent away to nearby points. At Moore Haven there are 90 known dead and it is estimated that there are 150 additional dead. Moore Haven is under two or three feet of water and the army is in control. Plans are being made to transport to other places the 200 residents who still remain in town. Food has been sent in answer to calls for relief and the sanitary situation is serious.

"Although only meagre reports have been received from the Red Cross representatives at Pensacola and several Alabama points, on account of the destruction of telephone and telegraph wires, all the indications point to a serious disaster situation in the locality. We shall keep you informed concerning the developments in these places."

ever been placed here. Commanders of infantry brigades from North Carolina which participated in the battle here include Davis, Daniel, Hoke, Iverson, Ramseur, Lane, Pettigrew, Scales and Steuart. Commanders of cavalry brigades were Hampton, Chambliss and Robertson.

Brigadier General Boyden was a member of Hoke's brigade, the Sixth North Carolina, in the battle.

Brigadier General Murphy was escorted over the battlefield by Captain Long. They paid a visit to the office of the battlefield superintendent, but did not see Colonel E. B. Cope, because that official is confined to his home, recuperating from the effects of a fall at his home ten days ago.

The visitors expressed themselves as well pleased with the tentative location for the proposed monument, and said the funds for its erection were almost certain to be appropriated by the legislature.

The visitors arrived in Gettysburg from Washington at 2:30 o'clock, and returned to the Capital City two hours later.

 "Don Juan," screen play by Bess Meredyth, starring John Barrymore, is a Warner Bros. picturization of this novel.

SYNOPSIS

Don Juan's disillusioned father warns him: "Destroy women or they will destroy you. Take their love scornfully—and forget!" This advice has made Don Juan the greatest lover of all time. But his gay career of heart-reckoning is suddenly checked in Rome by the dazzling innocence of beautiful Adriana Varanese. Juan loves her madly, changing the whole philosophy of his life. The affair arouses the enmity of the infamous Borgia, for Lucretia Borgia loves Juan, and her cousin, Donati, covets Adriana.

Ah, the old times would return, and all would be well!

Another step, another—and then Juan was looking the lovely, appealing lady straight in the face—and passing on. Just striding past her, without even another glance! She looked after him, bewildered. Pedrillo would have laughed at that look of utter amazement, had he not been so thoroughly disgusted with his master in that moment.

What a way to act! With life showering its most gorgeous gifts upon a man! Most heartily Pedrillo wished that, instead of helping his master in the fight with Donato and his hirelings, he had turned and run Adriana through with his own sword.

It was on that second day that Juan's patience was rewarded. For was found making love to the pretty servant?

He stalked in the street with Juan passed through the little door in the wall surrounding the garden beside the church. Juan closed the door behind him, and it was as if the peace of the church surrounded him the moment he had done so. There was quiet in the small garden, quiet that even the violence of the Borgia's rule could not touch. There were flowers growing close to the wall; there was a little stone fountain, in whose waters cooling pigeons splashed; there was a little shrine with a statue of the Virgin, whose dull blue robes were like a bit of the blue Italian sky.

Seeing that statue, Juan murmured a prayer. The Virgin had come between him and an intention the thought of which sickened him as it rose in his memory. Perhaps the Virgin would help him now, when he came to her only purity and love in his heart. Fearful, eager, wrung by the force of his ardor, he stood waiting, and at last the heavy leather door of the church swung outward. Juan stopped behind a tall flowering shrub whose yellow flowers fell softly on his shoulders. Hardly breathing, he stood there, waiting as Adriana came out of the shadowy church and down the garden path.

At last, after days of waiting, she was coming! What would he do, what could he say to her?

She walked slowly, pausing to pick a flower and to watch the pigeons. As for Adriana, she had

And now here he was, facing her, speaking to her.

he caught sight of Adriana for an instant, as she was entering the very church on whose steps Donati had first seen her.

There was a garden beside the church, sheltered from the street by a low wall. As the heavy doors of the church swung to behind Adriana, Juan, rousing himself from the trance of adoration into which he had fallen, hurried across the street and into the garden.

Through a side door he could see into the church; opposite that side door was an image of St. Anthony, the dull blues and reds of the saint's robes glowing faintly in the lights of the candles that burned before the image.

On the stone floor knelt Adriana, with head devoutly bent.

For an instant Juan knelt too, there in the soft Italian sunlight, then rose, to stare with hungry eyes at the girlish figure in the trailing white gown.

When at last she left the church he watched her as she went. Again, on the next day, and the days after that, he hurried to the church and watched for her to come, and then for her to go.

And Pedrillo, realizing that his master had completely lost his head, swore that he had lost his head as well.

It was the day following that new determination seemed to take hold of Juan. As Adriana entered the church he stood watching her adoringly—at sight of his master's face Pedrillo stared in blank disbelief. Then he shrugged his shoulders skeptically. Impossible that Don Juan, the greatest lover in all Europe, should fall so hopelessly in love!

Eagerly he hurried across the street and up the steps, and stood for an instant looking into the church, watching Adriana as she knelt in prayer.

Pedrillo followed him and would have gone with him into the church. Juan motioned to him not to. Pedrillo stopped short, hurt and indignant. Never before had he been treated like this! Had he not always been the greatest possible help to his master? Had he not been of inestimable aid in many a delicate situation? How many times had he taken the blame that should have fallen on Don Juan in a compromising moment, just as he had done it on the balcony outside Lucretia Borgia's room when Juan known the bitterest despair when, regaining consciousness after fainting in Juan's arms, she realized what had happened. He had remained hidden until she was beside his hiding place; then he stepped forward humbly.

She had adored Juan, had in her mind endowed him with all the virtues that any man could have. He was brave and strong and good, she had told herself, and kind, and gentle.

And then he had shattered her ideal to bits, had before her eyes become as loathsome as any slaving beast eyeing its prey. He had made her doubt all that was holy, and good, had forced her to lose her faith in mankind.

Daily she had prayed to be made to forget him. Yet even in her prayers there was the vivid memory of him, the feeling of his arms about her, of his lips pressed to hers. She told herself angrily that she would give life itself to thrust him forever out of her mind, and knew in her heart that, despite the insult he had offered her, those memories were the most precious possession that she had.

Not understanding herself, she wept. And even as she wept, she wondered if she would ever see him again.

Her question was answered when, one day, as she was entering the church, she saw him in the street. Again the next day, and again the next, she saw him, waiting in the little garden. She told herself that she must avoid such encounters; she knew that he came because he wanted to see her, that, resenting his actions, she ought to give him no opportunity to speak to her.

And yet—when she longed so to speak to him again—embarrassed, humiliated when she recalled his treatment of her, she could not bring herself to make a change in her plans and going to church elsewhere. Each day she told herself that she would change the next day, and each day she postponed changing.

"I do not expect you to forgive me," he said, and his voice sounded strange in his own ears. "Just let me look at you, I beg. For three days, at this same hour, I have waited, and I would have gone on waiting through all eternity had it meant that I might have had a glimpse of you!"

DO SQUIRRELS REMEMBER
CACHE'S OR TRUST TO LUCK?

Harrisburg.—How the squirrels in the capitol park decide ownership of the thousands of peanuts they bury is puzzling people who have been in the habit of feeding them.

On pleasant days, when many people visit the capitol, the squirrels get many more nuts than they can consume. They bury the extra ones. On wet days when there are few people around they may be seen sometimes digging them up.

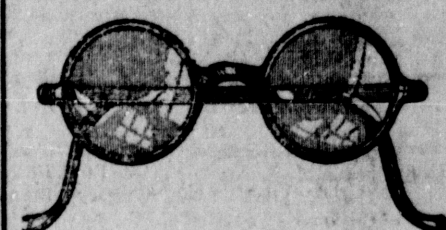

The troubling question that has arisen among the visitors to the grounds is whether each squirrel remembers each nut that he buries and its location or merely helps himself to what he can find, without regard to ownership.

Brevity is the soul of wit.

POLICE NEEDED TO KEEP FOOLISH FROM DEATH

The apparent insatiable desire of persons to walk over the Kinzua viaduct, near Kane, is costing the Erie Railroad Company the hire of policemen to keep them off the structure. In fact, until officers made their appearance it was not unusual for trains to stop to permit pedestrians to get out of their way safely.

The viaduct is 3,000 feet long and 300 feet above the ground at its center. It annually is visited by scores of persons many of whom attempt to walk across it. The structure contains guard rails, which if tightly hugged will permit a person to keep out of danger's way when a train approaches. However, to permit free passage of trains and avoid possible injury to pedestrians the policing of the structure was started.

OVERSLEEPING SAVED HIS LIFE

To a lapse of memory Frank White, of Mount Carmel, believes he owes his life. He forgot to set his alarm clock and as a result he was not called in time for work. On that day there was an explosion in the shaft of the mine, where he worked and three men were killed, all fellow employees.

Out of the Past

Happenings of Days Gone by as Chronicled in The Star and Sentinel and The Gettysburg Times, the Files Reveal.

FIFTY YEARS AGO

On Friday, last William F. Cody, the noted Indian scout known on the plains as "Buffalo Bill," made a flying trip to Gettysburg. He came direct from the scene of the Indian war, having come east under the impression that hostilities would be suspended for the present. He left Saturday, having received a telegram from General Sheridan recalling him west. This indicates that the Indian hunt is to be resumed at once by General Crook. "Buffalo Bill" is one of the most noted scouts on the plains and has had large experience in Indian warfare. He is a tall, erect, well-built, with a keen eye and intellectual expression; wears a broad rim soft felt hat, with long black hair falling loosely and profusely over his shoulders. We believe he is a member of the Kansas legislature. Mr. Cody thinks Custer's defeat was largely due to Reno's failure to support him promptly.

Local Items: The "Hayes and Wheeler" club will meet in McCaughy's Hall tonight at 7 o'clock. Fair: On the 7th of October the ladies of St. Francis Xavier's in this place will hold a fair in Agricultural Hall, for the benefit of the church.

Mr. P. Delik has opened a new store at Strouse's stand on Chambersburg street—Ready made clothing, etc. Mr. Delik has put in an open front and largely improved the store room.

A new post office has been established at Mt. Rock, Mt. Pleasant township, in this county to be called "Centennial" and Miss Joanna M. O'Neil appointed postmistress.

On Wednesday of last week, during the temporary absence of the person in charge of Mr. James Pierce's store, corner of Baltimore and Breckenridge streets, the sum of ten dollars was stolen from the drawer.

On Thursday night of last week the store of Mr. George F. Kalbfleisch, Baltimore street, was broken into and four or five dollars in small change in the drawer, a pair of boots, a ham and some other articles were carried off.

Dedication: The new M. E. church on West street, Gettysburg, will be dedicated with appropriate services on Sunday, October 1st, at 10 o'clock, a. m. The public is cordially invited to attend. Able speakers from a distance will be present.

Rev. Dr. E. Greenwald, of Lancaster, has been elected president of Muhlenberg College, Allentown, in place of Dr. Muhlenberg, resigned. Prof. H. E. Jacobs, of Pennsylvania College, Gettysburg, has also been tendered the professorship of Greek language and the literature in the same institution. Neither gentleman has yet made known his purposes either to accept or decline.

Forty hours: The devotion of Forty Hours, in adoration of the Blessed Sacrament, will begin in St. Francis Xavier's church of this place, on Sunday morning, October 1st. The high mass of exposition will take place at 8:30 o'clock, a. m., to be followed by last mass at the usual hour. In the evening services will be held at which Father Watterson, vice president of Mt. St. Mary's College, will preach, and on Monday evening the sermon will be preached by Father Shanahan, pastor of St. Joseph's church, Bonneauville. The mass of reposition will close the devotion on Tuesday morning, at 9 o'clock.

Death of Dr. Bittle: A special despatch to the Baltimore Sun says that Rev. David F. Bittle, D. D., president of Roanoke College, Virginia, died suddenly on Monday evening last at 9 o'clock. Dr. Bittle graduated at Pennsylvania College with the class of 1835 the second class graduated after its organization.

He married Miss Louisa C. Krauth, sister of the late Dr. C. P. Krauth. In the organization of Roanoke College, he was elected its first president, and occupied that position until his death, its success being largely due to his self-sacrificing labors and devotion. In June, 1875, he delivered the annual address before the Young Men's Christian Association of Pennsylvania College in this place.

Edgar M. Levan claiming to be editor of the Reading "Sunday Morning Review" writes to that paper a scurrilous and strangely untruthful account of the last tournament in Gettysburg. The writer registered at the "Eagle Hotel," and by all accounts was not in condition to know whether a tournament was in progress or not, much less to say what took place. He has drawn on his fancy for his facts—and a very vitiated fancy it must be.

The fair: The fourteenth annual exhibition of the Adams County Agricultural Society commenced its meeting on Tuesday. The day opened very unpropitiously, as a heavy shower of rain fell in the morning, and there were also slight showers in the afternoon. This of course prevented a large attendance for the day. The entries in the various classes are superior in quality and equal in quantity to those of any previous exhibition. The display of women's fancy work in the hall is fuller and more tasteful than usual, and in the same building there is a full exhibition of the various sewing machines, melodeons, cabinet organs, etc., together with some elegant specimens of apples, peaches, grapes and other articles too numerous to mention.

The county trot, premium $50, was won by ex-Sheriff Hersh's "Gray Lucy." Yesterday afternoon between 40 and 50 masqueraders on horse back in every variety of motley costume made somewhat of a sensation on our streets, en route to the fair grounds.

Several fine horses are here to contend for the $100 premium this afternoon at 1 o'clock.

SIMPLE THINGS
I like to fling the doorway wide and bid a friend come in,
I like to have a blazing fire in which my dreams to spin,
I like an easy chair at times and books to read at night,
A little garden space outside with blossoms red and white,
A bowl of soup and home-made bread, a yellow bird that sings,
For happiness, it seems to me, is born of simple things.

Oh, I could write a thousand charms I've seen along the way.
A red geranium in a pot, a little child at play,
A maple tree in scarlet dressed, a patch of summer sky,
The blush upon a maiden's cheek, the twinkle in her eye,
All these have set my blood aglow and never lost their fire,
For life is filled with countless joys of which we never tire.

We weary of the fame we win and sicken of our gold,
The joy which once we thought they had they do not seem to hold,
But man can sit with friends tonight and watch the faggots burn
And want them all to come again and wait for their return,
And when October tints once more an old familiar tree
There's none so bored by beauty but will turn his eyes to see.

No man grows weary of his fire, his books and easy chair,
The roses he has brought to bloom to him are always fair,
The more familiar joys become the deeper grows his love,
Who wearies of a lovely moon and all the stars above?
So mindful of the thrill of power and all that money brings
It seems to me the lasting joys are born of simple things.

Lighted Match in Mine Fatal

Harrisburg.—The man who lights a match in a mine is placed by Joseph J. Walsh, state secretary of mines, in the same category as the man who didn't know the gun was loaded.

The secretary recently received a report from a mine inspector in the anthracite district which told about a lighted match snuffing out three lives. The accident occurred when a young man, 17 years of age, struck a match on his first day in a mine. With the flare of the flame came an explosion and his life and the lives of two others were lost.

Little Jack Rabbit
by David Cory

Yes, sir. Just as I closed yesterday's story something round and shiny fell out of a tree-top right at the Yellow Dog Tramp's feet.

"What is it?" he barked, as it rolled under a leaf. "Looked bright and round. I declare, it's a pretty gold ring," he added, as he pulled it out with his right front paw. "A tiny gold ring with a bright, shiny stone. Where could it have come from? No jewelry shop in a green tree top? If his eyes had been looking upward, instead of along the Winding Trail, he would have seen Grandmother Magpie suddenly fly away without a word. Of course the honest old dog tramp never suspected her of stealing the ring. Perhaps he didn't know that magpies often do. Of course they don't realize that it is stealing. Pretty pieces of jewelry just catch their eyes and their bills just snatch up the shiny little trinkets as a matter of course. In many a magpie's nest all sorts of things have been found.

"Well, I'm a lucky old dog," he murmured. "Just wishing I had a present for Lady Love, and here it is, dropped right at my feet. I never knew that wishes came true so quickly. As soon as I grow hungry I'm going to wish for a Delmonico Steak," and tucking the ring in his vest pocket, he hurried along.

Billy Breeze was whistling a gay tune in the treetops. Pretty soon the Yellow Dog Tramp sat down to listen. He loved the music of the wind and the song of birds. Yes, he did. The melody of the Bubbling Brook was sweet to him. He was a hobo dog and loved all the sounds of wood and meadow. From the distance he could hear Tiny Miss Cricket and the Three Merry Grasshoppers. Drowsy music, for by and by, not so very long, he closed his eyes and then he forgot to open them. Yes, sir. He just went to sleep, when of course he never heard Billy Breeze suddenly stop and shout out a warning.

"Look out! Wake up! For goodness sake, just now you should be wide awake, For Danny Fox is coming near, On evil bent I greatly fear!"

But, dear me! The Yellow Dog Tramp was snoring so hard that he never noticed the change in Billy Breeze's tune. And on he slept. Yes, sir, he just kept right on dreaming of the good old days when he was a pup down on the farm, and never felt the sly old fox's paw in his vest pocket. "Ha, ha!" smiled, but not out loud, Danny Fox to himself as he slipped the tiny gold ring into his own pocket. "This will fit Mrs. Fox's pretty finger. It's our wedding anniversary today. Won't she smile when I give it to her." Then tiptoeing away, he left the old tramp dog to discover his loss on waking up.

Dear me, I'm sorry for him. And for pretty Lady Love, too. I'd rather she had the pretty gold ring than Mrs. Danny Fox. Yes, indeed. Well, what's the use of wishing? But, come

EASY TO DARKEN YOUR GRAY HAIR

When you darken your hair with Sage Tea and Sulphur, no one can tell, because it's done so naturally. Preparing this mixture, though, at home is messy and troublesome. For only 75 cents you can buy at any drug store the ready-to-use preparation, improved by the addition of other ingredients called "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound." You just dampen a sponge or soft brush with it and draw this through your hair taking one small strand at a time. By morning all gray hair disappears and, after another application or two, your hair becomes beautifully darkened, glossy and luxuriant.

Gray, faded hair, though no disgrace, is a sign of old age, and as we all desire a youthful and attractive appearance, get busy at once with Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound and look years younger.—adv.

No More Indigestion, Backache Or Constipation. Now Feels Fine

Well Known Citizen Tells of Relief brought by Drecto.

"I can hardly believe I'm the same man who started to take Drecto a short time ago for this grand remedy has seemed to give me an entirely new system and I now feel fine," is the enthusiastic statement made to the Drecto man by Mr. J. H. King, a well liked farmer living at Lineboro, Md. "For some little time I have been suffering severely with indigestion. The pains were so bad that I hated to eat for fear of what I would suffer afterwards. I was also troubled with backaches, was very constipated and felt tired and sluggish all the time.

"But Drecto went right to the root of my troubles and now I can eat as much as anyone without the slightest fear of indigestion. My bowels are as regular as the clock. The backaches have disappeared and I have more pep and energy than for several years."

For a sluggish liver, weak kidneys, disordered stomach, constipation, headaches, rheumatism and catarrh of the head or stomach there seems to be nothing better than Drecto, the new medicine which is doing so much good in this section. Nearly everyone who takes it, praises it. That is the best thing that can be said about any medicine.

Mr. Hearn, the well-known Expert from the Drecto Laboratories now at People's Drug Store, is telling scores of people every day how to take Drecto for best results. Go to see him. His advice is free.—adv.

TODAY'S TALK

By GEORGE MATTHEW ADAMS

THE JOURNEY OF THE SAD HEART

SHAKESPEARE speaks of the man whose elements were so mixed in him that one could stand up before all the world and say: "This was a man!"

Since this remarkable, though simple assertion, which occurred in Shakespeare's great play "Julius Caesar," we of an alter experience know that it takes an extraordinary mixture to really make a man.

In spiritual proportion we find the highest development in a man's character, for through it alone is a man brought to the roots of beauty. It is from here that he grows his dream.

But the dreamer must be a poet as well, and he is a sad and lonely figure who is strong enough to make his way through the makeshift intricacies of mechanical gain and commercial power, to where his star rests.

I recently read of the return to England of the great sculptor, Albert Gilbert, self-exiled nearly a quarter of a century ago. His was an ideal of no compromise with perfection. Loss of all he had meant nothing beside this determination on his part to carry out the expression of his heart without trimming. But this meant a storm of criticism, and finally debt and a broken heart. And so he left his native land intending never to return.

But the other day Gilbert did return and he is to complete one of his most noted works, left unfinished. Much is learned in 20 years, and so it is believed that the great artist will be permitted to end his sad journey in triumph.

You can't tie a sensitive heart to a rule.

The understanding heart has its own garden of beauty. Its flowers are its own best loved. So that when the sad road outside tires too much, it can find its garden again, its beauty and its love.

Famous Preacher Father Of Famous Preacher Sons

By QUAKER O'TAYLOR
(In National Republic)

Henry Melchior Muhlenberg, prominent as preacher and patriot during the American Revolution, had many claims to distinction.

He was the founder of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. He was the father of John Peter Gabriel Muhlenberg, the famous preacher who staged one of the most dramatic episodes of the Revolutionary War. Washington commissioned him a colonel. The next Sunday, in his pulpit, at Woodstock, Va., he preached a stirring sermon on the wrongs this country had suffered from Great Britain, and at its close dramatically exclaimed:

"There is a time for all things—a time to preach and a time to pray; but there is also a time to fight, and that time has now come."

Then, fervently pronouncing the benediction, he threw off his gown and appeared before his congregation in the full uniform of a colonel. Hastening to the front door of the little church, he ordered the drums to be beat, and announced that he was ready to enroll volunteers. In less than an hour 300 men had joined his regiment. He participated in the battles of Sullivan's Island, Brandywine, Germantown, Monmouth, Stony Point and Yorktown. He was made major general and after the Revolution was elected to Congress.

The elder Muhlenberg was likewise the father of Frederick Augustus Conrad Muhlenberg, noted preacher, member of the Continental Congress, twice speaker of the Pennsylvania legislature and the first speaker of the United States House of Representatives after the adoption of the Constitution. He presided over the Pennsylvania convention which ratified the Constitution of the United States.

Another son was Gotthilf Henry Ernest Muhlenberg, who preached in New Jersey and Pennsylvania, and became a world-famous botanist. His books on this subject are known everywhere. He was visited at his home in Lancaster, Penn., by Alexander von Humboldt and Aime Bonpland. He was a member of the world's leading scientific societies.

To be the father of three such sons, and thus to furnish three of thousands of reputations of that ancient myth about the worthlessness of preachers' sons, was distinction of an unusual character, but Henry Melchior Muhlenberg won undying fame as a pioneer preacher in America.

Lockerbie Street of Riley's Old Days Is Doomed; Is Now Dilapidated

Indianapolis.—"Such a dear little street, it is nestled away, 'From the noise of the city and the heat of the day."

But the Lockerbie street James Whitcomb Riley wrote about thirty-nine years ago no longer is nestled away from the noise of the city. And, "The cool shady coverts of whispering trees,

"With their leaves lifted up to shake hands with the breeze," have disappeared as the city's residential line receded leaving Lockerbie street within a dilapidated downtown district.

Now Cheap Boarding Houses
To Riley the Lockerbie street residence of Major and Mrs. Charles L. Holstein was home for more than thirty years. There he wrote his "Afterwhiles," "Songs of Childhood," and others. And there in 1916 he died. But before Riley died the street was being given over to cheap rooming houses, and the oak and maple shade trees were being levelled.

Memorial Is Weatherbeaten
The Holstein home now is a Riley memorial and the desk and other mementos of the poet's occupancy still remain. Time and the elements have seared their marks across the old, aristocratic, two-story brick structure, that like Riley's battered "stovepipe" hat, hanging within its walls, is of the past. Its shabby neighbors belie the poet's words:

"Which in all its wide wanderings never they meet
"With a resting place fairer than Lockerbie street."

The tourist seeking the Riley home finds Lockerbie only a block long, not far from the business district. The pavement has been neglected and now is rough and broken. Soot has stained every building and the few trees that remain are a pathetic reminder to those who knew Lockerbie street when Riley immortalized it in poetry.

LIBERTY BELL IS ONE OF SIX WITH SAME FAME

Philadelphia.—The Liberty Bell in Independence Hall is one of at least half a dozen other "Liberty Bells" in Eastern Pennsylvania communities which also rang out the news that the Declaration of Independence had been signed.

Historically, these other chimes lay claim to the title "Liberty Bell," and indeed are so called. They have been gathered in one exhibit at the Sesqui-centennial Exposition, making complete the collection of the seven chimes which commingled their voices in celebration of the event.

All Told "Liberty"
Scores of additional bells rang out the news when the declaration was confirmed, but there are but six, besides the Philadelphia bell, which are recognized by historians as being authentic "Liberty" bells. All the six bells are smaller than the Philadelphia bell. Three of them were imported, as was the local chime; two were cast in Bethlehem, Pa., and the other at Bridgewater, Mass.

The bells are the town meeting house bell at Chester, Pa., said to be the oldest municipal bell in the United States. It was cast in England in 1724 and brought to Pennsylvania only forty-two years after the landing of Penn. For a number of years the bell was lost, but five years ago it came to light and was rehung in the Chester court house.

Second In Size
Second in point of size is the Lancaster bell, cast in England in 1745 for the "Cloister," near Ephrata, Pa. When it arrived it was declared "sinful and worldly," and was sold to the Holy Trinity Lutheran church, Lancaster. After serving at different times as state house bell, fire bell and church bell, it was broken in 1886, but was preserved.

The Berks county court house bell, cast in Massachusetts in 1763, ranks third in seniority. It also served in various capacities before coming finally into the guardianship of the Berks county Historical Society.

The St. John's parish bell at York, Pa., was acquired in 1774 by the Society for the Propagation of the Faith, in London. It was hung in the court house, owing to the church building having no belfry. It cracked while tolling the death of President McKinley in 1901. The Philadelphia bell was cracked while tolling the death of Chief Justice John Marshall in 1835.

In Constant Service
The Northampton county court house bell—the only one of the seven to have remained in continuous service up to the present—was cast by Mat-

WHEAT "PIT" IS FOREST OF WAGGING ARMS

Chicago.—To see the Roman salute given in all its classic perfection, visit the Chicago Board of Trade. On an exciting day, the crowds of brokers in the wheat pit really outdo the Fascisti.

Especially of late with wheat prices whirling wildly, tourists in Chicago seem never to tire of the picturesque spectacle of a forest of waiving arms thrust skyward on 'change.

Gestures Mean Millions

The life-and-death earnestness of the action appears all the more fascinating because of strange accompanying gestures. Their significance is rarely understood by outsiders, but every detail is full of meaning—an indispensable deaf-and dumb language of the grain trade.

The whole bizarre pantomime—how- ever much it may resemble a salute to Mussolini—is demonstrated by experience to be the best method yet devised for transacting like a flash business that runs daily far up into millions of bushels.

Sign Of Buying

The eager oblique upward stretch of the right arm of each of the multitude of brokers standing tip-toe in the trading-pit signifies not merely that he is striving to buy or sell, but also expresses in exact form the definite amount and the actual intended price. Where everybody is shouting, even the best lungs have their limit, and something more is needed.

Whole Hand, 25,000 Bushels

The device is simplicity itself—a sign manual in which the whole hand displayed vertically means 25,000 bushels, each finger counting as 5,000 bushels. Price in even cents is indicated by the clenched fist, held horizontally. Each horizontal finger separately extended represents an added eighth of a cent up to five eighths. The extended hand entirely with the fingers horizontal but close together means three-quarters, and the thumb raised separately is a signal for seven-eighths. Whether the grain is offered or being bid for is shown by a slight motion of the hand to or from the trader himself.

Grotesque as the system may look, the signaling not only closes contracts involving millions, but also instantly enables the official reporters every moment to note at a glance the actual price of grain—the price transmitted from Chicago to all the markets of the world.

thais Tommerop in the cellar of the Moravian Brethren's House in Bethlehem, in 1768, after which it was tested and taken to Easton, and hung in a steeple of the old court house.

In the tower of the Zion Reformed church at Allentown, Pa., while the treasured Philadelphia Liberty Bell lay hidden beneath in the basement during British occupancy, hung a small bell which defiantly rung out its summons. After 1790 the Allentown Liberty Bell passed to the municipal academy. It was obscured for many years after the academy was superseded by colleges, but recently was re-discovered and identified. Except for its missing clapper, the bell is as sound as ever.

HAS INTERNATIONAL BOOTS

Although not of the "seven league" variety, Alex Strevinski, a miner of Luzerne, daily wears to work what he calls his "international boots." The footwear was given Strevinski by a brother who served with the United States army in the World War. The boots were worn in France, Germany, Italy and Turkey. Though some the worse for wear they still are in fair condition.
